

Discovering Who They Are

Cheryl Arthur Prescott, AZ

Project Summary

The focus of this project was to develop an in-service program that would lead to a year long cooperative team. By learning about various aspects of themselves and each other, the school faculty, staff, and community members were able to connect in a meaningful and supportive way. This in-service program would go on to provide the school with a team of confident and spiritually aware personnel, an essential to educational success.

Project Results

The result of this project was that staff members were able to discover their:

- Talents
- Gifts
- Learning styles
- Love languages
- Communication style
- Temperament

All were used to strengthen and connect our educational team.

What We Have Learned

- The success of any school is first in the excellence of its staff. Helping that staff to grow as educators was imperative.
- Difficulties included challenges with time constraints, financial burdens to pay professionals, and staying enthusiastic throughout the project.
- For greater success, the personality testing should be done online prior to the in-service to reduce the time and money for the counselor. Paying your staff to do this increases their interest.
